The 2nd World Symposium on Sustainable Transport and Livability (WSSTL 2027) will take place from 30 March to 2 April 2027 at TU Wien, Vienna. Organised by the TU Wien, in collaboration with the International Group on Sustainable Transport and Livability (IGSTL), the symposium brings together global leaders from research, policy, industry, and practice to advance solutions for more sustainable, inclusive, and livable cities.

"We warmly invite your organization to join us in Vienna as a valued partner in supporting innovation and building more livable and sustainable societies."

Univ. Prof. Dr. Guenter Emberger

Convener, Chair of WSSTL 2027, LOC, ISC,
Head of Institute of Transportation
TU Wien, Vienna, Austria

"IGSTL promotes international knowledge exchange on how transport policy, planning, design, and engineering shape health, equity, environmental quality, and resilience."

Prof. Ashish Verma

President of IGSTL
Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru, India

ABOUT TU WIEN

TU Wien is one of Europe's leading technical universities, recognised globally for excellence in research, innovation, and education. Located in the heart of Vienna, it combines a strong engineering foundation with forward-looking work on sustainability, climate action, digitalisation, and urban development. With close links to industry, government, and international networks, TU Wien provides sponsors with strong academic credibility, global visibility, and access to technology-driven solutions.

ABOUT IGSTL

The International Group on Sustainable Transport and Livability (IGSTL) is a global platform connecting leading researchers, policymakers, practitioners, and industry experts dedicated to advancing sustainable transport and livable cities. Through conferences, workshops, publications, and ongoing engagement, IGSTL accelerates the translation of research into practice and policy.

Transport systems shape economic vitality, social inclusion, and environmental outcomes. WSSTL 2027 positions transport as a driver of well-being, resilience, and livability — bringing together global leaders from academia, policy, and industry. As a sponsor, your organization gains a powerful platform to showcase innovation, demonstrate sustainability leadership, and engage with decision-makers shaping the future of mobility.
